With stunning photography and compelling narratives, this book offers a unique perspective on this poignant chapter in Hawaiian history. Through the voices of former Kalaupapa residents, their descendants, and other community members, we learn about the triumphs and tragedies of a community that was forcibly isolated from the rest of the world.

A Lost History

Kalaupapa was established in 1866 as a settlement for people with Hansen's disease, then known as leprosy. At the time, there was no cure for the disease, and it was feared to be highly contagious. As a result, people with Hansen's disease were forcibly removed from their homes and families and sent to Kalaupapa to live out their days in isolation.

For over a century, Kalaupapa was a closed community, with no contact with the outside world. The residents of Kalaupapa developed their own unique culture and traditions, and they relied on each other for support and companionship.

In 1969, a cure for Hansen's disease was finally discovered, and Kalaupapa was gradually reopened to the outside world. Today, Kalaupapa is a National Historical Park, and it is home to a small community of former residents and their descendants.

The Kalaupapa Collective Memory Project

The Kalaupapa Collective Memory Project was founded in 2005 with the mission of preserving and sharing the history of Kalaupapa. The project has collected over 1,000 oral histories from former Kalaupapa residents, their descendants, and other community members.

The Ka Hokuwelowelo Latitude 20 Book is a product of the Kalaupapa Collective Memory Project. The book features a selection of oral histories from the project, as well as stunning photography of Kalaupapa and its people.

The book is a powerful testament to the resilience and spirit of the Kalaupapa community. It is a story of loss, but it is also a story of hope and redemption.

The Kalaupapa Collective Memory Ka Hokuwelowelo Latitude 20 Book is a must-read for anyone interested in Hawaiian history, Hansen's disease, or the power of the human spirit.

The book is a beautifully crafted and deeply moving account of a lost history. It is a story that needs to be told and remembered.
