Materials You'll Need

- Macrame cord
- Scissors
- Measuring tape
- Beads (optional)
- Hook or ring for hanging

Instructions

1. Cut four pieces of macrame cord, each about 10 feet long. Fold the cords in half and tie a lark's head knot around the hook or ring. This will create the top of the hanger.
2. Divide the cords into two groups of two. Tie a square knot with the left-hand cords, and then a square knot with the right-hand cords. Repeat this step until the hanger is the desired length.
3. To create the fringe, cut four pieces of macrame cord, each about 6 inches long. Fold the cords in half and tie a lark's head knot around the bottom of the hanger. Trim the ends of the cords to create the fringe.
4. If desired, you can add beads to the hanger. To do this, simply thread a bead onto one of the cords and tie a knot above and below the bead.

Tips

- Use a variety of knotting techniques to create different looks.
- Experiment with different colors and types of macrame cord.
- Add beads or other embellishments to personalize your hanger.
- Hang your plant hanger in a sunny spot where your plants can thrive.

Macrame plant hangers are a great way to add some greenery to your home, and they're surprisingly easy to make. With a little practice, you'll be able to create beautiful and unique hangers that will add a touch of style to any room.
