Safety Tips

Shark cage diving is a safe activity, but there are some important safety tips to keep in mind:

- Only go with a reputable operator. Do your research and choose an operator that has a good safety record and is experienced in shark cage diving.
- Follow the operator's instructions carefully. They will brief you on the safety procedures before the dive, and it's important to follow their instructions carefully.
- Stay inside the cage at all times. The cage is designed to protect you from sharks, so it's important to stay inside it at all times, even if you see a shark outside the cage.
- Don't touch the sharks. It's tempting to want to touch a shark, but it's important to remember that they are wild animals and should not be touched.
- Be aware of your surroundings. Keep an eye out for other sharks and marine life, and be aware of the current and other environmental factors.

What to Expect

On the day of your shark cage diving experience, you'll arrive at the operator's base and be fitted with a wetsuit and other gear. You'll then board the boat and head out to the dive site.

Once you arrive at the dive site, the operator will bait the water to attract sharks. You'll then enter the cage and be lowered into the water. Once you're in the water, you'll wait for the sharks to arrive.

When the sharks arrive, you'll be able to observe them up close and personal. You'll see their sleek bodies, sharp teeth, and powerful tails. You may also see them feeding or interacting with each other.

The shark cage diving experience is an unforgettable one. It's a chance to see these magnificent creatures in their natural habitat and learn about their behavior.
